

My proposition is the Redis Database to achieve Key-Value NoSQL Database.

Given our program's requirement to be able to manage sessions for creating recipes and constantly updating the state of an accounts budget, ingredients, recipes, and planners. The Key-Value Approach would be beneficial.

Having all objects in the account be placed on a Map to achieve association.

